Description

Being gvSIG 2.0 document types growing in number, it seems that the "Project manager" window size is not enough. First of all, vertical scrollbar in document types should not be visible/active and then the PM window should be longer keeping the same actual proportion. For example, restoring the PM window size of gvSIG 1.x could be a good design choice.

Al menos debería tener el tamaño para incluir los documentos que van por defecto.

El tamaño se había cambiado para todos los sistemas, pero al parecer en Windows se requiere que sea algo mayor que en linux. He agrandado un poco mas la ventana (a 450pixels) para que se vea mejor en Windows.

I'm sorry, but I have to reopen this ticket, because the Project Manager size is too wide now at least in Windows. Furthermore the height of document types area should be a little increased in order to eliminate the vertical scrollbar. I attach a new screenshot relative to BN2227.

@Alvaro: excuse me if I change the target version, but it's only a way to keep attention on this. Otherwise it could seem an issue related to an old build and then pass unobserved. Then you can review accordingly to your policy.

@Antonio, we review all the tickets. Don't worry about that. If more tickets are not assigned to this version, excepting the blockers ones, it's because of a resources/time question. Anyway the final version is released we are going to be able to update packages when the bugs are fixed.

Changed to fixed because I just tested the 2229 build in Windows and it seems that is already fixed.

Hi Francisco, this issue seems to be fixed if you have only four document types, but what's happen if you install the Map Sheets plugin or simply enlarge the Project manager window? The vertical scrollbar appears again, sorry.

Hi Antonio.

I've just tested installing the Map Sheet Plugin and vertical scroll bar has disappeared.

I attach a screenshot.

Francisco, do you mean that the vertical scrollbar has disappeared in a fresh BN2229 installation or after compiling source code?

#24 - 06/16/2014 12:19 PM - Francisco Díaz Carsí

In a fresh 2229 installation.

Antonio, where did you download build 2229?

#25 - 06/16/2014 12:25 PM - Antonio Falciano

I download it from

http://www.gvsig.org/plone/projects/gvsig-desktop/devel/gvsig/2_1_0/version but it's not available right now. Is it retired?

Sometimes they come back. ;)

In reference to #1901#note-11, here's a simple Jython script that sets the optimum Project Manager window size on Windows:

from java.lang import System
from org.gvsig.app.project import ProjectManager

def main(*args):
    """Set the size of the Project Manager window"""
    os = System.getProperty("os.name")
    if os.lower().startswith("win"):
        pm = ProjectManager.getInstance()
        cpw = pm.getCurrentProjectWindow()
        wi = cpw.getWindowInfo()
        wi.setWidth(420)
        wi.setHeight(540)
    else:
        pass

So it's possible to customize the size of Project Manager according the operating system, isn't?

Hi Antonio, please, could you check if the problem persists in 2.1.0-2269?

#31 - 03/09/2015 01:38 PM - Antonio Falciano

Hi Francisco,

I can confirm that the issue persists in 2269 (without using the snippets in #1901#note-28).
